Soap & Candle Manufactory,

SECOND, BETWEEN FERRY AND MARKET STREETS.

THE Subscriber having considerably enlarged his Works, is ready to receive orders for supplying SOAP, hard or soft, which he engages to deliver on as good terms as can be procured from any other quarter.

Large speculations for the purpose of sending over the mountains, having drained the necessary supplies of Tallow from the market, obliges him to apologise for his present inability to supply the demand for Candles. He hopes his friends will see the necessity of prompt payment, in order to prevent in future such a procedure, to counteract which is indispensably necessary, as it is a fact beyond doubt that the markets at the most productive seasons are barely sufficient to meet the increasing wants of the inhabitants, in an article so necessary.

Now, indeed, they have been so long excluded from commerce, their merchants are in general the most paltry huxters and sharpers, and most of their business long has been, and probably long will be, transacted by strangers. Our own countrymen have enjoyed their portion of this, but many of them who obtained citizenship, to transact it to more advantage, have suffered severely in the heavy requisitions lately made for the allies, and whether they can get relieved from this imposition, is yet problematical.

These discontents of the army were increased, by one peculiarity of the Russian campaign, and the exclusive favor shewn the imperial guards. While the officers who usually prided themselves in sharing the camp-life of the privates, were quartered in the grand chateaus of the lords, the soldiers were billetted on their serfs, in the most unhealthy uncomfortable wigwams, without chimnies and with no food but bitter bread and sour beer, which induced very mortal distempers. At the battle of Moscow, marshal Ney, to complete his success, requested the emperor to allow him to charge with his guards, about 60,000, who never took any part in the battle. To this, however, he would not consent, and the victory was left unfinished. A distinguished general of Bonaparte blames him for undertaking the battle of Leipsic—says he had determined to accept the treaty offered by the allies on the opening of the last German campaign, and had the pen in his hand to sign it, when Berthier entered and said, it was the first treaty he had ever made, which he had not dictated, he threw the pen to the ground. It was at the termination of this campaign, say the French officers, that Bonaparte began to carry on war by the coup des hommes, sacrafice of men. He ought to have collected the garrisons of Erfurth, Dresden and other advanced places on his retreat.

Attend the levee of——, the celebrated authoress. Bonaparte, when first consul, gave her certain papers to prepare for publication, but on the appearance of the work, when he became emperor, he had so completely changed his politics, that he ordered it suppressed as seditious. But an action being bro't for damages, the chancellor represented to him, that the documents bore his own signature, and he ordered a re-imbursement of expenses. But he forbid her having more than four or five visitors at once, placed her under surveillance of the police, and seized her papers.—It was only from the greatest prudence and the friendship of an officer of his secret police, that she escaped his vengeance. He nearly ruined her husband, however, by seizing his printing establishment of immense value under pretence of his being English, though he had been long printer for government, lived in the county 20 years, and served in the armies. As this gentleman affirms also, Bonaparte established a printing establishment of his own, and many other manufactories, being too tyrannical to suffer a single important establishment independent of himself.

Bonaparte is said to have called a council on the criminal code of France, and made a speech which so astonished them, that the chancellor pronounced him to be the greatest criminalist in the country. It was afterwards discovered that he had been closetted a whole day with a judge, the ablest of his profession, whom he had questioned, with that peculiar talent at procuring information for which he is distinguished. At Marengo, Wagram and Eylau, he is supposed to have given up every thing as lost, and his success in these affairs, is attributed to his officers, who acted independent of him; at least this is the opinion of respectable judges.

At the same levee meet Mons. ——, the head of the Protestant religion in France, an elegant scholar, and very eloquent preacher. In the pulpit he wears a flaming red ribbon, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, and usually passes Sunday evening at cards. Also a Spaniard, whose nom de guerre, by which he is called now, is Ali Bey. He understands the Asiatic languages, and many others so thoroughly, that in the disguise of an Asiatic Prince, he has travelled in Africa, Arabia and Turkey, observed all their most interesting customs, and is about publishing an account of them. He is tall and slim, with an scene of greater distress witnessed.—The whole of the passengers were almost literally naked. Mrs. M'Kenzie, the lady of captain M'Kenzie, of the 8th R. V. was indefatigable in her care of the women, rubbing their legs, benumbed with cold, and restoring life to the children by putting them in her bed, &c. There was 10 ladies in the cabin, who, when informed of the desperate state of the vessel, refused to go upon deck, and were all drowned. Some of the sailors, about 11 o'clock on Saturday night, got into the small boat, and without oars, sails or rudder, were instantly carried out from the vessel, and drifted by the greatest chance into the middle of Rozel Haven; and had it not been for this providential circumstance, not a single person on board could have been saved, as it was these sailors that alarmed the village, and caused the boats to be sent out to the assistance of the unfortunate people on board.

Brussels, April 1.

Such is the detestation in which the French are held in Switzerland, that count Talleyrand, their minister there, has been under the necessity of officially remonstrating against the severity with which his countrymen are treated. Under pretext of expelling the regicides and other revolutionary monsters from the Swiss territory, Frenchmen of the most inoffensive character and manners, have been very roughly handled.

Unparalleled barbarity.—Extract of a letter from Mons, April 5....."A tragical scene has thrown our town into terror and consternation. The day before yesterday, about eight in the evening, Mrs. Prpillen, the mother of a family, enjoying a decent competence, committed an act of despair or madness, to which the annals of the human mind can scarcely furnish a parallel. Being followed by her three children, a boy of four years of age, and two girls, she dragged them to a well. There seizing the two youngest, and threw them in; the eldest girl struggled a long time in her mothers arms, uttering agonizing, but fruitless cries. The barbarian succeeded in forcing her into the well, into which she at last threw herself also. These four unhappy victims have been taken out dead, and all the assistance of art was lavished on them in vain: yesterday evening at nine o'clock, they were buried. It seems that this woman whose mind was doubtless deranged, had meditated this great crime during the whole of the 5d; on that day she performed her devotional exercises, and distributed abundant of alms."

A Military Club, recently established in England, has excited the attention of Parliament. It appeared in the course of some remarks on the subject, that the society was composed of navy, army and militia officers; but though considerably numerous, it was fully maintained, that they met only for innocent and convivial purposes; the discussion of polotics being wholly excluded by a law of the society.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

On the 11th of April, the Prince Regent gave the royal assent to the American Commercial Convention Bill, the St. Helena trade intercourse bill, and the bill for the more secure detention of Bonaparte.

Ship Juno.—The Portsmouth Gazette of the 15th April, states, that the ship Juno, from N. York, has been seized at Sligo, for having smuggled tobacco on board. It is said that the tobacco was found in barrels purporting to be rosin, and that the duty was paid on them as if they had actually contained that article.

A letter from Jersey gives the following interesting particulars of the late melancholy shipwreck of the Balance, a large French transport, capt. Le Sage, having a crew of 24 men, and 84 passengers, mostly women and children, from Havre-de-Grace, bound to St. Maloes, to be put on board a frigate that was ready for them there, to convey them to St. Pierre and Miquelon, where they were to settle. They had turned the whole of their property in France, into ready money, and brought their entire fortunes with them. It was very dark when the vessel struck on the rocks, where her head was fixed, and her stern only above water. The tide was nearly out when she struck, the weather moderated a little, and many of the women, &c. got on deck; but the water rising by degrees gave them no hopes of escape from the waves. The women clung to the rigging, holding their children in their arms, and the shrieks, lamentations and despair, were distinctly heard. Some boats reached them at the break of day, from Rozel; 36 persons, however, men, women and children, were drowned before the boats came to their assistance; on the last boat leaving her, she went instantly to pieces. When the unfortunate people were landed, they were brought into the barracks at Rozel, and exhibited the most shocking spectacle. All hastened to tender them assistance; some fell on their knees with uplifted hands, cry out, gratitude! gratitude! while others frantic, called for their parents, their parents, their husbands, wives, children, &c. One man lost his father, mother, wife and two young children. Never was there a

Notice is hereby given,

THAT I will attend in person or by deputy, at the Court House in Pittsburgh, on Saturday the 22d day of June, instant; at the house of John Brown, in Ross Township, on Monday the 24th of June; at the house of William Marks, in Robinson Township, on Wednesday the 26th day of June; at the house of James Neal, in M'Kee'sport, on Thursday the 27th day of June; at the house of Joseph Ball, in M'Nair's Town, on Monday the first day of July next; at the Court House, in Kittaning, County of Armstrong, on Thursday the 4th day of July next; and at the House of James Waterson, Sugar Creek Township, same County, on Saturday the 6th day of July next; for the purpose of receiving any information that may be furnished as to the changes which may have taken place in the assessable property of individuals since the last assessment made under the act of January 9th, 1815, and previous to the 1st of June, 1816, which information must be given in writing, under the signature of the person whose tax may be affected thereby. These changes extend to 1 Assessable property omitted to be assessed at the preceding assessment, and property that has ceased to be exempted from assessment, such as property belonging to the United States, or a State, or otherwise exempted, which on its transfer becomes assessable. All such property is now to be assessed; but no alteration is to be made in the previous valuation of real estate in virtue of any improvement thereon.

2. Transfers of real estate and slaves, according to which an abatement in the enumerations and the valuations of the person transferring them will be made, and a correspondent increase in the enumerations and valuations of the person to whom the transfer may be made.

3. Changes of residents and non-residents—These changes will merely require a transfer from the list of residents to that of non-residents, or vice versa, as the case may be, of the property in the ownership or agency of which such a change has occurred.

4. The burning or destruction of houses or other fixed improvements of real estate, for which an abatement equal to the injury arising from these causes is to be made.

5. Slaves that have been born, or have died, or have runaway, or have otherwise become useless since the preceding assessment. In these cases, changes in the preceding valuations are only to be made, when the tax chargeable to any person for slaves would be diminished, by the valuation, on the first day of June, of all those (excepting such as have been obtained by transfer) then owned by such person; and the reduction in the valuation, in such event, is to be equal to the difference between the valuation of those owned at the preceding assessment and the existing value of those owned on the first of June, 1816, and an abatement equal to such reduction to be made.

The whole of these changes are to be relative to the first of June, and in all of them the rates of the valuations made under the act of January 9th, 1816, are as near as may be, to be maintained, excepting in two cases: one where a partial alienation of real estate shall occur, in which case as the tax as fixed agreeably to the preceding assessments is to be proportioned among the several parts according to their respective values on the first of June, the proportional value (according to the preceding valuation) at that time of the part alienated, and of the remainder of the property, should be stated: the other respecting slaves (other than such as are transferred within the same collection district) which are to be valued according to their existing value, and slaves that have been born, or have died, or have run away, or have otherwise become useless since the preceding assessment, in which case the course above stated is to be pursued.

Any person becoming the owner of a slave, by transfer to him from a collection district other than that in which he resides, is required under the penalty of ten dollars, to render as aforesaid a statement, specifying the age and sex of such slave, who is to be valued according to his or her existing value.

In all cases in which such information of a change in the assessable property of any person, according to the preceding assessment shall not be so received, such person and property will continue liable to the whole tax chargeable thereon agreeably to that assessment.

AND NOTICE, is further hereby given, that I will attend in person or by deputy, at the Court House in Pittsburgh, on Thursday the 25th of July; at the house of Joseph Ball, in M'Nair's Town, on Friday the 26th July; at the house of John Brown, in Ross Township, on Saturday the 27th July; at the house of William Marks, in Robinson Township, on Monday the 29th July; at the house of James Neal, in M'Kee'sport, on Tuesday the 30th July; at the Court House in Kittaning, on Saturday the 3d August; and at the house of James Waterson, on Monday the 5th August, for the purpose of receiving any appeals that may be made in writing, as to the revised enumerations and valuations made in virtue of such changes, which will be open to the inspection of any person who may apply to inspect the same, and a statement of which will be previously made and delivered to each person affected thereby, or be put in the mail, addressed to him or her, and directed to the Post Office nearest to the abode of such person agreeably to my best information, except in the case of persons not residing within this collection district.

In the statements furnished by individuals, it will be necessary to specify with precision the property of an individual, as it existed at the time of the preceding assessment, the assessable property omitted then to be assessed, and its value; the transfers of real estate and slaves (stating the names and residence of the persons to whom transferred) and their value; the changes of residents and non-residents, with their names and residence; and the value of the property; the burning or destruction of houses or other fixed improvements of real estate, with their value; property that has become exempt from taxation, and its value; stating the grounds on which the exemption is claimed, and the state laws by which it is permanently or specially exempted; and when an abatement is claimed for slaves that have died, or have run away, or have otherwise become useless since the preceding assessment, the statement must give a list of all the slaves, with their sex and ages (excepting those obtained by transfer) owned by the individual, valued according to their value on the first of June 1816, which value must be less than that of the valuation of his slaves at the preceding assessment, to entitle him to an abatement. In all these cases there must be such a specification and description of the property, as it stands on the first of June, 1816, and as it stood at the preceding assessment, as will enable the principal assessor to make proper deductions, in cases where they may be rightfully claimed, and proper charges where they are incurred.

To aid in attaining this precision, the following form is annexed, being that required in the original assessment, and which as near as may be, may serve as a model in drawing out the statements now required from individuals.

THE GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1816.

The Steam Boat Washington, lately built at Wheeling, and from whence she sailed a few days since for New-Orleans, after passing Marietta, burst her boiler, by which accident two men were killed and several severely wounded, among the latter is Capt. Shrieve.

The Lexington Reporter of the 6th of June, says, "We are happy to hear from New-Orleans, that the crevasse in the levee had been repaired. Letters by the last mail state, that no further injury had been sustained by the flood."

The Candidates to represent the state of Kentucky in the next Congress, are very numerous. Among the number, Col. R. M. Johnston, holds a conspicuous place. At Frankfort he delivered a long speech to the people, and convinced them, at least it is so said, that the law giving a member of Congress 1500 dollars each session, was not only truly republican, but a great saving to the country.

The Boston Recorder states, that "the population of the United States has been found to increase at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum. that is, it doubles in 23 years; and the population having been 7 millions in 1810, it will be 14 millions in 1813."—This calculation is erroneous; for at 3 per cent. increase, the population will not double in less than 33 1-3 years.

OYER AND TERMINER.

1st June 1816, 7 o'clock, A. M.

Commonwealth vs. Richard Smith. } MURDER.

The court having met agreeably to adjournment, the prisoner was called upon by his Honor Judge Rush, to declare "if he had any thing to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him."

The prisoner, by one of his counsel Peter A. Browne, Esq. then read a statement, tending not so much to justify Richard Smith, the defendant, as to charge the court, the attorney-general, and the public with entertaining a strong bias or prejudice against him.

The sentence of the law was pronounced by the president of the court.

The sentence, included a serious and solemn address to the prisoner on the subject of a future state, and on the necessity of making some expiation for his crime by a sincere repentance. A fervent wish that his guilt might be washed away through the atoning blood of his Redeemer. And a strong commendation to the mercy of his God.

The manner of the President was, as usual, impressive—and his emotions towards the close of the sentence nearly overpowered his utterance. His feelings were such as dignify the Judge and do honor to the man.

Since the receipt of the above report, we have been favored with the concluding paragraphs of the sentence as delivered by Judge Rush. They are as follows:—

"You are a young man, cut off by vice in the morning of your days. Your sun has scarcely risen, before it will set; not I hope, under shades of everlasting night, but that in the morning of the resurrection, you may shine in robes of innocence, purchased by the blood of the lamb.

"Now to the grace, mercy, and goodness of God, I commend you; concluding with this single request, that immediately on your return to prison, you will send for some pious divine, to pray with you, and for you, and to assist you, in praying for the awful change, that soon awaits you.

"The sentence which the law prescribes, for murder in the first degree, and this court awards is this—

"That you be taken from hence, to the goal of the city and county of Philadelphia, from whence you came—and from thence to the place of execution, and be there hanged by the neck, until you are dead—And may God have mercy upon your soul."

The warrant of execution, in all cases, must be signed by the governor of the commonwealth. It designates the day on which the execution is to take place.

THE PEOPLE.

The people are much abused by hasty partisans, but the people judge from experience and feeling, not from reason or anticipation. Perhaps, in the end, this is the best, and only wise way as it respects the state. As long as the people prosper, no matter from what cause, as long as money is plenty, though that be mere paper, it would be vain to look for a change of political sentiments; but, when by the final termination of the French revolution, the causes of our prosperity, if we have any, must be sought for in our industry, and frugality, and paper money will no longer serve the purpose of going to market or paying taxes, then will the people look out for rulers, who do not merely possess patriotism and economy, but who have virtue enough to pursue what their wisdom shall have dictated. Justice and Peace, and those times are not far distant, nay, may arrive too soon for many of us.

GUNPOWDER—A new mode of manufacturing gunpowder has been invented in France—the grains are spherical, of the size of swan shot, well glazed, and composed of concentric coats; the advantages which it possesses over common gunpowder are, that the manufacture of it is much cheaper, and that it burns at least six times more rapidly than common powder.

A Sergeant of the Inniskilling dragoons, who is now quartered in Exeter, received in the battle at Waterloo, 13 sabre wounds in his body, a musket ball passed through his thigh, and both his arms were broken. In this state he lay on the field of battle, amidst a heap of slain, from Sunday to the Tuesday evening following, when the persons employed to bury the dead, observing some signs of life in him, he was conveyed to the hospital, where he happily recovered and the brave fellow is now in perfect health.

Mr. Scull,

If you think the following is worth insertion, please give it a place in your paper.

Dear Mr. Sched,

I have been much entertained till of late by your correspondence, and regret its suspension. I have often wished to accept your general invitation, and to become a correspondent, but doubtful of my stile being sufficiently dignified to meet your approbation, have hitherto kept my ideas from publicity. That doubt, if not removed, is for once overcome by a desire to inform you of what demands examination, and I know not a better channel for its accomplishment, than through your pen. I am about leaving this place for my future residence down the Ohio, it therefore is the first and last time I can do myself the pleasure to address you.

Please to inform me, after reasonable consideration, why a common portion of attention to the ladies in your city, should be construed invariably into an attachment, which must or should eventuate in a marriage to some one of them. Is it from a propensity among the fair ones, as well as ourselves, to be credulous on those subjects which are agreeable? No longer ago, Mr. Sched, than last week, I was told by a friend, in the technical language of the day, that some ladies he believed "were turning the grindstone" for your poor humble servant: because, forsooth, I had been seen walking, or talking, with a lady, perhaps on the preceding day. I could mention a thousand observations of this nature occasionally made, the sincerity of which I should be disposed to question, were it not for their frequency—with all due deference, I think it may prevent that happy circumstance from taking place, which perhaps would in many instances otherwise be the case. I have not perceived more devotion to the young ladies of your city on the part of the gentlemen than elsewhere.

"Yet to the beauteous form they are not blind."

There is in polished society a degree of assiduity paid to the fair sex with which custom has taxed the beau, which strictly speaking amounts to supererogation; this degree of attention should be so considered, and not carry with it a conviction of a precise motive. As I am a "non-resident" here, a mere "bird of passage," I may be excused for not being more particular on this head.

To digress to my next subject. I have a distant friend who has in his possession a number of the famed P——gh notes; he informs me that the bills of this bank had depreciated immediately after their first circulation—that a satisfactory explanation and pledge has since been publicly made by its officers, that their paper should be redeemed on presentation, if not with specie, in bills of other banks.

Please, Mr. Sched, for the satisfaction of my friend, give me a reason why these bills should not pass as currently as other paper "fog" which are not redeemed with specie. I am informed you once expressed your opinion of this institution; please to give it a second consideration. I am in expectation if he does not soon dispose of them, he will send them to some "Solarian" to purchase the new discovered land in the sun, lately seen by the help of smoke glasses.

The last subject, Mr. Sched, on which I shall trouble you is, the cause of the many grievous complaints existing among the barbers; men exercising a profession so highly ornamental and useful to the community. It appears they are deprived of a great part of their employment from the prevailing custom of wearing long hair, a fashion said to have taken its rise from the arrival on our shores of the "Marquis of Tweedale," who bore his "carrotty honors thick about him." Now, Mr. Sched, a voyage from the "fast anchored isle" at an early season of the year, and encountering on our coast the cold northern blasts, may have made it highly necessary and conducive to the health as well as comfort to the Marquis, to have the head well protected. But during the warmth of our summer to persist in this fashion is, in my humble opinion, both troublesome to the wearer, and injurious to the profession I have just named.

Perhaps the Marquis was withheld from giving us a "cutting" example because he was to re-encounter these "blasts" on his return home. Undoubtedly before this he is shorn of his honors.

I could dwell more on these topics—but verbum sat sapienti—and I beg leave to subscribe myself,

Your humble servant,

PHILO.

BOSTON, June 3.

The American squadron were to leave Port Mahon 13th March, destined on a cruise, as high up as the Archipelago.—The ships were reported to be in the finest order, and the crews remarkably healthy.

We are glad to learn, that the steeldies of Mr. Perkins, are to be put in requisition by the national government, for impressing their new emission of bills. The admirable invention of this great mechanical genius, is the only one we believe, that has triumphed over the arts of a whole host of counterfeiters.

Extract of a letter from an American officer attached to the Mediterranean squadron, dated

MARSEILLES, APRIL 7.

"A British squadron, consisting of 6 ships of the line, 2 frigates, 3 sloops of war, and 3 bomb vessels, sailed from Port Mahon, on the 21st ultimo, under the command of lord Exmouth, destined for Algiers.

"Lord E. has stated, that he is instructed to demand a release of all christian slaves; and in case of refusal, to commence immediate hostilities against the city. He also stated that it was the intention of his government to deprive the Turks of the regency, and transfer it to the Moors, they being a less troublesome race of people.

"Since our squadron honored the dey with an unexpected visit in July last, he has bestowed much attention on the improvement and extension of his fortifications. His lordship will, therefore, meet with a warmer reception than he anticipated."

Shocking Effects of False Honour.

In consequence of a dispute originating in a ball room, two young men of this city had a meeting in Jersey on Thursday last.—They were attended by what is erroneously termed their friends. The fatal engines of death were placed in their hands by their pretended friends. The contents were discharged without effect.—Again they were reloaded—and again they prove harmless to either party—Thrice they were loaded, and thrice proved harmless—Here let the reader for a moment pause.—Let humanity, let honour, if you please so to call it, ponder over this scene of infatuation and wickedness. The youths, perhaps grown up together in friendship are suddenly converted into deadly enemies.—Ill advised and unrestrained by reflection, they are hurried to the field of death; and their friends unconcernedly look on their attempts at each others murder!—Thirsting for each other's blood, the instruments of destruction are again loaded, and again discharged without effect!—A fifth time with the same result! A sixth!—A SEVENTH and a youth of eighteen is sent into eternity!—We can proceed no farther! the heart bursting subject, is left to our readers reflections.—[Rel.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By the ship Comet, Captain Center, arrived at this port from Havre, which port he left on the 15th of April—Paris papers to the 13th of April are received. On the 10th of May, in lat 43, 13, lon. 61, the Comet was spoken by the British sloop of war Jasseur, from Halifax, bound to Bermuda. The commander of the Jasseur, gave to captain Center a Portsmouth paper of the 15th of April, containing London date of the 13th.

Captain C. states that all was quite in France, and that no political event of moment had recently occurred there.

The following is a summary of extracts from the latest French and English papers.

The trial of sir R. Wilson, and others, was to come on the 23d of April. M. Hyde de Neuville Ambassador to America, had not left Paris on the 13th April. The Duke of Wellington left Paris on the 11th April. for Cambray, but would shortly return. The Empress of Austria was severely indisposed at Verona, on the 23th March. Gen. Drouet had been tried by a council of war and aquitted of the charge of having attacked France and the lawful government with an armed force, 3 to 4, upon which the King's council demanded notwithstanding, that he should not be set at liberty.

Paris, April 7. A decree has acquitted General Drouet; the Duke of Angouleme has solicited the pardon of General Debelle; the King has commuted the punishment of Colonel Boyer and that of Gen. Travot; the guilty have all the latitude imaginable to defend themselves; the Judges testify even an interest for the accused.

Gen. Drouet acquitted yesterday by the first council of war of the military division, has made a visit to the Duke of Duras, first gentleman of the bed chamber, and to marshal Macdonald, Duke of Tarentum.

LONDON, April 16.

Accounts from Naples of the 27th ult. state, that the Austrian and British troops will soon evacuate that kingdom, and proceed to the Papal states, where they will occupy the fortresses and villages on the coasts of the Adriatic and Mediterranean. This measure is to be adopted on account of the insufficiency of the Papal treasury to keep up a military force sufficent for the safety of the country and the coasts. After the foreign troops have left the Neapolitan territories, a national militia will be raised to defend the coast against the attacks of the Barbary powers. Upon this subject M. de Chateaubriand has made a motion in the French chamber of peers, to request his majesty to order his minister for foreign affairs, to write to all the courts of Europe, for the purpose of opening general negociations with the Barbary powers, in order to induce these powers to respect the flags of European nations, and to put an end to the slavery of the christians.

APRIL 17.

At a late hour this morning, we received Paris papers of Saturday and Sunday last.

The trial of sir Robert Wilson, and Messrs. Hutchinson and Bruce, is definitively fixed for the 22d inst. There are four others to be tried with them, accused of having procured or favored the essape of Lavalette. The son of M. Deseze is to be the judge; M. Dupin their counsel.

DOCTOR CHISHOLM'S

Anti-Bilious Pills,

Of a quality superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a GENERAL MEDICINE, in this Country.

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India Islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates.

This extraordinary Medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuent of Bile, is without example; never producing debility or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child or weakly female:

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excruciating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flaxseed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and DISEASES OF THE LIVER, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case the dose may be increased according to the strength or constitution.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by
